
Heart Patch Place

Where do the best-loved bears in the world go after they've been snuggled nearly to pieces? The answer is Heart Patch Place, where well-worn sweaters can be tenderly mended with heart-shaped patches. Where little bears are wrapped up in the warmth and love of special chain-of-hearts scarves. Only the most special teddies are here–the ones who've been hugged, cuddled, cradled and whispered to. Heart Patch Place–It's a whole heart-warming world wrapped in love, for you to give or collect!

dramatic presentations of the daily happenings in her life. Some of them I help with especially when I accidentally overheated her turtle last summer, and it became toast. We had a turtle burial. We were grief stricken for about three minutes, but I have not heard the end of it.

Kelsey peering through the large Kaleidoscope at the Fort Worth Museum of Science.

Kelsey is really challenging herself this year by working in the high math class at school, and practicing to do a solo in dance this year along with her other dance team routines. She will compete three dances at competition in the spring, one of which will be her solo. She's now a junior Girl Scout of which I'm still the troop leader. We had the fantastic opportunity to sleep over at the Ft. Worth Museum this fall. It was fun to roam the museum after hours and sleep among the exhibits. We plan to try to do the same at NASA in Houston next fall.

Employment is now a part of my life. I am teaching 4th grade at a private school near us. The whole teaching career suits me well. Every day is an adventure and a thrill.

My classroom is weighted unintentionally with the kids that have dysfunctions which vary from spatial tactile disorder, alternating homes in a divorce, and to a kid who has never been in school before. Half of my class is "different". I will ask for more of them purposefully again next year. We work well together. I believe that their unique difficulties will make them all into magical crystalline snowflakes.

Dale's excitement this year took him across the ocean to Rome and Milan Italy. He traveled there with his job last July and got to take a whirlwind tour of the cities. He even managed to take some decent photos of the sights despite the fact that I would not let him take "my" camera. Dale noticed that all of the sites in Italy were under renovation. So as the saying goes, Rome wasn't built in a day, and they are still at it.

Wishing you a year ahead where you can stop time, enjoy peace, and rest with your family and friends.

HURST -- Another year has passed as quickly as a bolt of lightening charging to the earth. Every day seems to have been lit up with new memories, the kids' varied activities and daily to-dos. We don't seem to have time for any "honey-dos". We just "do" baseball from January to November, football August to October, basketball October to January, girl scouts year round, and dance year round.

We spent our summer vacation on a houseboat floating around Table-Rock Lake in Missouri. We swam, skied, tubed, and fished. In our spare time we went to Silver-Dollar City, a small amusement park on the lake, and saw a couple of shows in Branson.

Relaxing in the water at Table Rock Lake.

Kyle has really enjoyed playing with the select baseball league because he plays with kids that attend his school. He catches and plays outfield. He can throw a good strong ball from the outfield and get a player out at home. It's awesome when he does that!

Football was a real thrill for him again this year. Kyle played everywhere. He started as middle-linebacker and lead the team again in tackles. On offence he started as wide-out, but played fullback and halfback as well. He even got the opportunity to throw a halfback pass. He gets a real adrenaline rush from kicking the ball, running the ball, and tackling. He got to do a lot of that since he played every minute of every game this year in 7th grade.

Kyle aiming for the fence.

Kyle has adapted to the junior high lifestyle quite well. He was elected to student council by his peers, and has been very successful academically. He even ventured into the boy-girl stuff because he took a date to homecoming. What a big boy our baby boy has become. He proves this every time he shaves and eats us out of house and home.

Kyle running towards daylight.

Life now at Shady Oaks Elementary School is just fine now for Kelsey as she says because Kyle is not there anymore to bug her. It's her school now she says. She adds the charge to our lives with a roller coaster of

Ribbons and Rainbows™

by Carolyn Blaylock

Once upon a time, there was a little girl named Carolyn who loved to paint. When she was three, her grandmother gave her a grown-up easel and, standing on her tippy-toes, she painted pictures of her baby dolls. As she grew, God molded and encouraged this little one's heart and the talents He placed within her. The years passed, and He gave her a loving husband and four "real" babies to nurture. Still she loved to paint and write and bring the love of the Father to others. And so, Carolyn wove her passions into an endearing line of greeting cards called "Ribbons and Rainbows," praying that each card would bring a blessing, wrapped in hope and sealed with the promise of God's love.

Also thanks for all the good times we've shared and all the things you've done for me, like making my graduation dress and bringing Carol to see us so often. I have great memories that will always be with me. Thanks for being you.

December 5, 1998

Hello, and Merry Christmas from San Francisco.

1998 has been a year of change for the Biggs family. We started the year out with a trip to Columbus, Ohio in March of this year to visit Joe's family. We had a really nice visit with his Mom. Joe's Dad has dementia and can't remember what he had to eat 5 minutes after he eats it. In April we had another trip back to Columbus as his Mother was rushed to the hospital on Thursday, April 23rd and died on Monday, April 27th. She had diabetes and congestive heart failure. Her kidneys shut down and there was nothing that could be done. We're so glad we had that time with Mom in March. When we told Joe's Dad the next morning that Mom had died he sobbed for about a half-hour. They had been married for 65 years. We left him with the nurses and went to the funeral home to make the arrangements. When the aides came to take Dad down to the dining room for lunch about an hour after we left he asked the aide if his sweetie was coming down for lunch. Over the last several months Dad's memory is getting even worse. It's no fun getting old.

Another change that happened this year is I got a new job at United. I now am responsible for planning the inventory required for the maintenance of aircraft components. It's an all new area for me. I have never planned inventory before and it has really been enjoyable to learn something new. It's been a challenge and I really like it. Outside of work I have been doing some decorative painting and not much of any other crafts.

Joe is still tending to the house. It is sure nice to have a well run house. His daughter was out for Thanksgiving and we had a really nice visit. We did some of the tourist things, celebrated Turkey day and put up the Christmas decorations (that way it feels like we have her two holidays). She has more energy than we do, she's 37, and we were pooped after being on the go every day for a week. Joe recouped enough on Sunday and Monday and put up outside lights so we are all decked out for the holidays.

While some of the changes this year have been very difficult it points out some very important lessons and reminds you what is important. My thoughts for this Christmas season is to not sweat the small stuff, concentrate on the important things – making happy memories because it is the memories you have in the end. Hope you all have a wonderful, happy, safe Holiday Season.

Merry Christmas

Jan & Joe.

The Tree is up. The lights are on and the sights and sounds give all the signs of Christmas. It is hard to believe that the first year of the new millennium is coming to an end. We looked forward to this year with such anticipation and now it is coming to a close.

It has been a memorable year in so many ways. Who would have thought that as we prepare to enjoy the holidays we would be preoccupied with who the next President is going to be as the political saga goes on and on and on.

On a personal note, this year has been a roller coaster filled with joy as well as sorrow. In May my brother, Fred, lost his battle with cancer and died on May 20th at 47 years old of Non-Hodgkin's Lymphoma. After a year and a half of chemotherapy, blood tests, CT scans, bone marrow tests and all it got the better of him. He worked up to the day before he was admitted to the hospital into intensive care. He would not give in. Joe and I flew back and were able to spend some time with him, which I am so thankful for. As I think of Christmas, I will always remember the way he would put his hands on his side and laugh with a twinkle in his eye and say HO, HO, HO . . . . . Merrrrrrrry Christmas. We will greatly miss him.

A month after the loss of my brother our spirits were lifted by the addition of a beautiful, dare I say perfect, grandson. Joe's daughter had a baby boy. Devin was born on June 19th and made his debut at 9 pounds 2 ounces and 20 inches long. Liz and her husband, Rick, and Devin live in Louisville, Kentucky. Joe and I had a chance to go to Louisville in July and I have to say that Devin stole my heart the first minute I saw him. He is growing so fast and by September he was almost ready for his first paper route. We may get to see him at Christmas this year, so the holidays are filled with mixed emotions.

With the loss of Fred and the addition of Devin I took a look at the madness on the job scene over the past several years and decided I needed a change – something with less stress. In September I was able to go back to a job I had 10 years ago. Since I left I have received 3 promotions. I was able to go back as a lateral (same pay grade, same pay) but 1/3 of the responsibilities. United changed its pay structure this spring and after many years of very little in the line of pay increases we received a very nice raise. So this year I accomplished everyone's dream – less work and more pay.

As you celebrate Christmas this year, cherish all your memories for they are precious and tuck the new memories in between the old and look forward to the future. Joe and I wish you all a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy Healthy New Year.

with the kids. I work any where between 9 + 3... about 20 hours a week.

My Mom seems to be adjusting (slowly) to her new environment. She had one "bad" Aide there who was not very nice to residents... she's no longer employed there and my Mom is very happy about that. She had one room mate come + go and just got her second room mate... she seems nice. I feel so bad for these people. None of them want to be there, but have to be. I wish I could do something or think of something to make it better for them. I wish my Mom could get to Assisted but we'll see. Well, I hope you have a wonderful Christmas. Love, Sherry :)

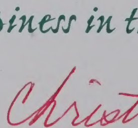
Dear Carol + Lee,

Hi! Sure do enjoy having the internet to touch base with you on occasion. I've become a little more busy lately since I just started working part time... What was I thinking... start a new job in December of all months the busiest month of the year for us all... I must have had a brain fart or something! My shopping's not getting done like usual. My friend works at this Doctors Office (Psychiatrists... no doubt) and they were very short handed, so I jokingly said, "Oh, I'll come help you and the next thing I knew her Doctor boss called me and interviewed me over the phone, and hired me. It's quite interesting. I prepare all new patient charts, data entry, file, etc. We'll see how long I last. I have very flexible hours which is nice for me →

Dear Lee, Carol + Family,



With very best wishes for a Merry Christmas and much happiness in the New Year.

Season's Greetings

Hi and Merry Christmas! Can't believe the holidays are upon us already. It's been a long year for me, since I've been hospitalized twice. In May of this year, I had fallen down in my bathroom and had laid there most of the night. The next afternoon my daughter called me and since I was unable to answer the phone she received no answer. She immediately came over to see what was wrong. She found me on the floor and quickly called an ambulance. They did several tests and found out that I had suffered a mild heart attack which had made me very weak. After a little rest and relaxation in the hospital they let me go home.

Then, in early September, I was walking and suddenly felt dizzy. The next thing I knew I was down on the ground. Luckily, my brother was visiting with me and helped me to the chair. Since I was having a lot of pain in my hip, I was taken to the hospital to have my hip x-rayed. I found out that I had fractured my hip. We tried to let it heal on it's own for several weeks, however the pain became more intense. The doctors decided to do surgery, so I had a hip replacement done on my right hip. At this point I have been in the hospital for two months. I finally was able to leave the hospital in early November.

I am now staying at Friendship Village Health Care Facility to continue my therapy. If I can get my strength back enough I am planning on moving into their Assisted Living Section. For now I am receiving my mail through my daughters address which is:

We hope your year has been a good one - healthy + happy.

Our year has been challenging, with the loss of 7yr old Bosley (Golden Retriever) after a 6 mo. battle with lymphoma, Gary's company change, my foot surgery, leaky roof from ice dams, leaky ceilings with pipes etc. But we feel blessed with Mom's relatively good health, and ours, as we hear about Freddy + Aunt June's difficulties. We hope your Mom has been well - sure wish we could see her and "you all" more often - it's always so much fun chatting with you.

December 2000

Hi!

Got the leaves raked for the last time one week, put up the Christmas trees and shoveled snow the next. It looks like winter is here whether we're ready or not. Should've shopped early instead of monitoring that Presidential election!

We may finally be seeing the light at the end of the tunnel as far as Lee's unpredictable work schedule. Right now he's basically on call 24 hours a day/7 days a week, and either works an 8 hr. day shift or 12 hr. shift days/nights. I never know which/when til the last minute. Within a few months, though, he hopes to be on the day shift Monday through Friday permanently. His hours will be 6 am to 2 pm, which he will love and may drive me nutzo. ☺

Shelley and Larry bought a lake cottage last summer and may be selling their house here next year before they're annexed into the city and taxes go up. I guess it was a fantasy thinking we'd be lucky enough to have any children living in the same town!

Julie is still teaching Special Ed in Elkhart and taking classes toward her Masters and permanent Special Ed license. She tutors at a Learning Center twice a week and after school the other three days to help pay for the classes. There are only a few left to take, and I can't tell you how glad we'll ALL be when she's finally finished! ☺

Michael, our "littlest one", 6'2, is a senior this year. He's taking a Microsoft course through the high school, and by June he will be a Certified Microsoft Systems Engineer. He still works as a deejay at the Roller Dome on weekends, but quit his job at the shoe store for a part-time position with a computer/internet company and has had a smile on his face ever since. The company just told him if he goes away to school they will let him "telecommute" and scout out new talent for them, so it looks like he'll be heading to Purdue next fall to major in Computer Science. Lee and I are trying to rally for four more years of college.

My mom is doing pretty well, although every once in a while she pulls a good one just to keep me on my toes. The latest was two weeks ago, when Zoop!-- down she went. She says she'll do anything for attention, and she has me convinced. ☺ One doctor gave her a new prescription that had her talking so loud in her sleep she woke herself up. Glad to say he changed the medicine and she's not doing that anymore.

Hope you're all well and that you have a wonderful new year. The older I get, the less I take for granted and the more I appreciate—especially family. Just wanted you to know I feel awfully lucky to have you! ☺

Love,
Carol

You're Such a Special Person

Warmest Thoughts from the Writings of Emily Matthews

"A life is measured by the joy
one brings to others."

There are people who know
the true meaning of caring,
And give of themselves
in the spirit of sharing
as they live life with love
in their hearts.

There are people who smile
with each passage, each season,
Who understand change
has a purpose and reason,
and they carry that hope
in their hearts.

There are people who value
the simplest of treasures,
And recognize beauty and worth
in small pleasures
while they hold lasting joy
in their hearts.

You're such an inspiring example
of how one can beautifully live,
Of the way one unique, special person
makes a difference through all that they give.
So for all of your generous sharing,
for the wisdom and joy that you've brought,
Here's a wish just to tell you how warmly
you are held close in MY heart and in MY thought !

Wishing You
a Beautiful Day

FOR CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR.

AMERICAN GREETINGS

I turned 73 a wk ago. Hal isn't doing too good. Having a lot of trouble with his eyes. Lots of blood behind the eyes + everything is blurred. He is afraid of loosing all his sight. I blame this on going on insulin. They said it was his blood thinner he was on. He's been off that for almost a month now. They may be able to operate - but he is not sure he wants to do that. We go to town tomorrow to get our flu shots. We both got colds from the Kids again. I hope this is the last one for the winter. How are you two doing?

from two cats
who think you're tops!

These cats look like my new Kittens. We are having beautiful weather here. It was 70° today. I can't believe it's the middle of Oct already. What happened to Sept? Have a nice day -

Love - Helen + Hal.
